"Dark as coal when first poured, this wine has a subtle, earthbound power that takes time in the glass to emerge. With its notes of plum skin and fig, and dark, muscular oak component, it's a well-priced cabernet for ribs." – Patrick J. Comiskey

"Sleek and precise, with expressive blackberry, espresso and licorice flavors that take on richness toward the refined tannins. Drink now through 2024." – Tim Fish

"Bright ruby-red. Inviting nose melds blackberry, cassis, licorice, chocolate, fresh herbs and tobacco leaf. Quite full in the mouth, showing lovely creamy depth, but framed by slightly edgy acidity. This concentrated wine offers impressive stuffing for its price but needs time to knit. Finishes with building, tongue-clenching tannins, excellent length and a late hint of nutty oak. Plenty of old-vines flavor intensity here. Serious juice--" – Stephen Tanzer

"Wafting from the glass with notes of pencil shavings, black currants, dried herbs and loamy soil, the 2015 Columbia Valley Cabernet Sauvignon is medium-bodied, nicely concentrated and layered, with a good core of fruit, fine-grained but youthfully firm structuring tannins and a sappy finish. It's a persuasively characterful and complete wine from a challenging vintage." – William Kelley

"Blackberries and black olives with some crushed tile undertones. Medium-bodied, firm and silky. Fine and easy. Drink now."
– James Suckling

"The 2015 Cabernet Sauvignon Columbia Valley (22 months in 30% new French oak) is another rich, textured, gorgeously layered beauty that offers loads of bang for the buck. Chocolate, spice, black fruits, and a touch of scorched earth all flow to a medium to full-bodied, supple, nicely textured Cabernet Sauvignon that's impeccably balanced. Drink it over the coming 7-8 years." – Jeb Dunnuck

"There's much to love on the aromas, with notes of toast, cocoa, cherry and spice. The palate shows a pleasing interplay between the fruit and acidity. It needs some food to truly be appreciated. It should shine alongside a juicy steak." – Sean Sullivan
