“Good depth and complexity here. This has aromas and flavors of dark plums and blackberries. The long, detailed and sturdy tannins deliver a modern, punchy style. Drink or hold.”
– James Suckling

“Bright medium ruby. Sexy, nuanced aromas of black cherry, blackberry, mocha and musky oak, plus a whiff of game. Quite suave and smooth but with captivating mineral energy to its black fruit and chocolate flavors. This seamless, rather sophisticated wine finishes with dusty but fully buffered tannins, an element of brown spices and serious persistence.”

“Slightly more expensive and made from 100% Syrah, the 2015 Syrah Estate Seven Hills Vineyard is deep purple-colored and boasts ripe black cherries, blueberries, peppery herbs, graphite, and crushed rocks. It's rich, full-bodied, beautifully concentrated, and has both tannin and acidity. Drink it over the coming 7-8 years as well.” – Jeb Dunnuck

“Aromas of raspberry jam, blackberry and generous spice accents lead to full-bodied fruit flavors backed by soft tannins. It's a rich, ripe charmer.” – Sean Sullivan

“Trim and well-structured, with pinpoint currant, stony mineral and smoked spice flavors that lead to refined tannins. Drink now through 2022.” – Tim Fish

90 points, Robert Parker, www.RobertParker.com,
June 2018

“The 2015 Syrah Seven Hills Vineyard Estate exhibits aromas of ripe blackberries, mocha and licorice, followed by a supple, open-knit and expansive palate with a juicy core of fruit and a youthfully cherry finish. More lavish than the entry-level Columbia Valley Syrah, I'm not convinced it's as deep or concentrated, but it's a well-made, characterful red.”
